THE NEWSLETTER MIGHT GET A NAME

After a little time, the creativity of the members came through. We have received a few suggestions for the newsletter name and thought we should put it to a vote. The recommendations that we have received so far are:

The Relic

Then and Now

Duxbury Chronicle

Couching Lion Chronicle

Under The Hump

The next meeting will be held at the South Duxbury Church and we thought we would have a ballot box there so you can cast your vote. We will have a board with the names we have so far displayed. You may add any other ideas you have to the board, so if you have a good idea, there is still time to add it to the list.

While you are enjoying your meal, give the newsletter name some thought and cast your ballot. The next newsletter will reveal the results.

Last Issue Steve Grace The next meeting will be our summer picnic meeting at the South Duxbury Church at 1:30 on Sunday, August 13th. There will be a short business meeting and, of course, the ballot box for the newsletter name. Tours of the church

SUMMER

You have probably already noticed that this issue is not copied on 11 x 17 paper with a fold in the center. Instead of copying the newsletter we thought we would try to generate them directly from the printer. The hope was to increase the quality of the photos and decrease the cost of production. Let us know what you think and if you like it we will keep printing instead of copying. will be offered that will give you some of its history.

PICNIC

The rest of the meeting will be a potluck get together. Beverages, plates and utensils will be provided. Bring a dish to share with the other members

THE NEXT ISSUE

For the next issue we would like to focus on the cemeteries in Duxbury. In addition to the cemeteries themselves we would like information on how the customs have changed over the last hundred years to bring us from a small family plot to a much larger community burial ground. The ones that we know about are:

South Duxbury

and a lawn chair for outdoor seating.

Don't forget to stop by the dedication of the Crossett Hill Cemetery at noon on the way to the meeting, if your schedule allows.

DUXBURY IN THE CIVIL WAR

One thing became very apparent when we started the task of reporting on Duxbury in the Civil War. We would never do the history of the Civil War justice and would just concentrate on the people of Duxbury. In researching the story it really brings home the feeling of how all consuming this war was. The Vermont Civil War website has almost a hundred men as being credited to Duxbury. Many others had family in Duxbury but enlisted in neighboring towns and were credited there. Others came to Duxbury and settled here after their service was done. The number of people with connections to Duxbury was larger than the 95 listed in the database.

The population of Vermont at the time was approximately 300,000 and half of the population were women. If half of the 150,000 men were of enlistment age that would make 75,000 men eligible for service. Vermont had about 34,000 of these men in service during the war. Young boys would routinely lie about their age so that they would be able to enlist. The state of Vermont also had the distinction of having a high per capita mortality rate, second only to Michigan.

If you think about the impact having a hundred men from our present community at war it would be a much larger hardship over 140 years ago. Some families had more than one member enrolled in service and the Shonnios had five sons enlisted for service.

THE SHONNIOS

John and Lucy (Boyden) Shonnio both were born in Canada. After living in Danbury, New Hampshire for at least a few years, they migrated to South Duxbury where they build a log home for their family consisting of twelve children. The location of this home was opposite the ledges just south of the upper Turner Hill Road on what is currently Route 100. Many in this family were reported to be shingle splitters.

Five sons from this family entered the ranks of the Union Army during the Civil War. Abel was in Company B of the 10th Regiment of the Vermont Volunteers and served a period of three years. Luther was a musician for the 1st Battalion of the Vermont Light Artillery and like many of the enlisted men was exposed to disease and died in September of 1863. Arnold and George enlisted in September and October of 1861 to serve in the ranks of Company G of the 6th Regiment of Vermont Volunteers. Arnold was wounded and captured at Salem Heights on May 3, 1863. He was paroled shortly after and discharged the following October because of his wounds. George was also wounded and captured at Savage's Station on June 29, 1862. He was subsequently paroled in August and transferred to the Veterans Reserve Corps shortly after on September 1, 1863. Very soon after he was discharged on October 17, 1863 to complete his military service. Chauncey also served in Company G of the 6th Vermont Volunteers, but that was only after he served in Company D of the 2nd VVI. While with the 2nd Vermont Volunteers he had a general court martial on January 18, 1864 where it was determined that he should serve out the term of his enlistment doing hard labor at Dry Tortugas. His hard labor must not have deterred him from service, since he reenlisted less than a month after he was discharged from the Company D to serve in Company G of the 6th Vermont Volunteers.

LUTHER & TIBERIUS MORSE

The Morse brothers enlisted together on December 21, 1863 and were later mustered into service in the ranks as privates of Company E of the 5th Regiment of the Vermont Volunteers. Thiberius was 27 years and Luther was 40 with a wife and children. Most men of that age did not enlist into service. It is a possibility that he received a financial incentive to enlist which would have given his family additional security. They suffered a great lost when he was killed five months later on May 12, 1864 during the battle of Spotsylvania.

Tiberius completed his enlistment and was mustered out June 29, 1865 at which time he returned to Duxbury. He and his wife Betsey farmed on Crossett Hill on the location that is now the Moose Meadow Lodge. This couple is buried in Phillips Cemetery.

H E N R Y C L A Y B A C K U S Henry Clay Backus had many ties to Duxbury and resided in South Duxbury even though Civil War records credit him to Fayston. He enlisted on October 7, 1862 and was mustered in to the war as a private. After a year he was promoted to Sergeant on October 15th, 1862. He kept that rank until he mustered out of service on October 28th, 1864.

His grand-daughter Alice DeLong passes on the family folklore. He was a sharpshooter and the memoirs relate an incident during troop advancement in which Henry noticed a fireplace or chimney with a couple brick missing and the glisten from the sun on a confederate rifle barrel aimed at his troops from the fireplace. When asked later by his family what he did, he replied in his rather slow drawl; "I put a stop to that!"

During the rebellion his company was engaged in many battles. Disease, the elements and battle took a heavy toll on the troops during the three years that Henry gallantly and proudly served his country.

In the fall of 1864, he returned to South Duxbury and became a lumber sawyer in the local mills. He and his wife Alice Woodard are interred in the South Duxbury Cemetery

PICTORIAL HISTORY THIRTEENTH REGIMENT VERMONT VOLUNTEERS: WAR OF 1861-1865 BY RALPH ORSON STURTEVANT

Collecting information for this issue you showed that many men from one location enlisted on the same day and ultimately ending up in the same Infantry unit. One unit that had several Duxbury citizens was the 13th Vermont Infantry Company. Ralph Orson Sturtevant was a member of the 13th Vermont Volunteers and published a book in 1910. The book gives a very detailed account of the lives and battles of the men of the 13th. The following excerpt is from - At Camp Wolf Run, Shoal, VA p. 115 & p. 117

Lieutenant Marsh of Company K had recovered from fever and learning that some of his company were at the old camp ground near by made his way down from the hospital thinking there would be an ambulance or teams in a day or two, and that he could ride over to our new camp to join his company from which he had been absent for about four weeks. He had been dangerously ill, but now was well on his way to health. His great anxiety was to join his company and buoyed up with the prospect of seeing the boys induced him to make the fifteen miles march to camp Wolf Run Shoals.

On the last day of December, Lieutenant Marsh was taken to the hospital with a burning fever, and was much cast down and apprehensive that his death was near at hand for quite a number of our regiment has died at this camp with fever and many more were dangerously ill in the hospital. Our young Lieutenant was thankful for recovery and a happier boy, (and he was only twenty), could not have been found in our brigade.

The loaded teams started down the pike round by the way of the Court House, and we the guard, and Lieutenant Marsh across the fields to avoid mud and water, and soon we were separated as we then hoped forever from the scenes, (not recollections) of this disagreeable and unhealthy camp.

Before passing on to our new camp, must call attention to some facts associated with our six week stay at Fairfax Court House. Company A lost one by death in this camp. Alden Richardson, December 26th, 1862 and one by desertion, Carlos W. Tumer or boy fifer, enlisted from Duxbury. He was a slender, light haired boy of only 16 years old, the son of Geo. W. Tumer, of Duxbury. He was one of the first to succumb to the hardships of army life. Some time in December he was taken down with what proved to be typhoid fever and was sent to Alexandria, where he died at King Street hospital, January 4th 1863. Thus was added another to the long list of names of young lives suddenly cut short by "this cruel war."

Joshua Fisk. Joseph Ayers was left at this camp and died January 27th, 1863. Company B lost by death. Carlos W.

Turner, a drummer boy, January 5, 1863, a lad of sixteen, John C. Canerday, January 20th, only eighteen. Oscar C. Reed, December 26th, 1862 and by discharge, Franklin M. Atkins, January 15th, James M. Thayer, January 22nd. Company C by death, Charles C. Coburn, January 26th, 1863. (am not sure he died at Fairfax Court House). Company D lost by discharge, Seth W. H. Griffin, January 12, 1863. Company E lost by death, Corporal Hiram C. Wolcott, January 18th, 1863 and by discharge, Henry E. Sherwin, January 10th, 1863. Company F lost by death, John C. White, January 13th, 1863. Hall Woodworth, a drummer boy, January 9th, 1863, Reuben M, Babcock, January 29th, 1863. Company G. lost by death, Joel W. Bliss, January 8th, 1863 and by discharge, John B. Fassett, January 13th. Company H lost by resignation, Captain Wm. C. Peck, Company I lost by resignation, Charles E. Bancroft, January 15th, 1863 and by discharge, Asa C. Atherton, January 18th, George A. Peck, January 12th. Company K lost by Discharge, Edgar F. Sisco, January 12th, Charles Brunell, January 20th and one by desertion, Burton Dean, January 10th making a loss by death of eleven, by discharge 10, by desertion 2, by resignation 2, a total loss of 23 of the rank and 2 officers of the line making a total loss, while in this camp, of 25. This was a sad record for forty days and many others were sick in hospitals in this camp or transferred to Alexandria and Washington, and some sent to Vermont. The most of those who died at this camp were sent home by the companies to which they belonged on a mutually agreed arrangement, the plan of assessment. One was buried at Fairfax Court House, Hiram C. Wolcott of Company E, and at his request, for he said his wife could not endure the sight of his dead body and didn't want it sent back home. He was a volunteer from Morristown, Vermont.

John C. Canerdy enlisted from Duxbury, his native town at the age of 18. He was one of the first to succumb to disease. While we were encamped at Fairfax Court House, he was attacked by Typhoid fever and died at the post hospital January 20, 1863, the day the regiment moved to Wolf Run Shoals.

Disease has made sad havoc in our ranks here, and we were glad to move from the camp that had filled our hearts with so such sorrow. Our comrades had made the supreme sacrifice and died for a noble cause, but they ardently looked forward with high hopes of return to the scenes and associations of boyhood and looked forward to a life of success and happiness. But why they prematurely cut off and life so short, and we returned and still survive, is beyond comprehension, doubtless it was all for the best, possibly eternity will reveal and make plain.

Franklin D. Griffith enlisted from Duxbury, his native town. He was 21 years old. 5 ft. 9 in. high. He was a strong, well built man capable of great endurance. The 27th day of December he was detailed to act as brigade teamster and he continued in this position until captured by Rebel guerillas with our teams in May, an account of which Sergeant Boyce gives on another page.

Mr. Griffith married Sallie Gillet of Duxbury, who died some years ago. Children, Emmie, married Ed Tracy; Betty, married Merrill Childs; Birney, married Mr. Sleeper; Eunice married Jed Haskins, Josie married Chandler McAllister. Lester K. Dow, enlisted for Duxbury, in which town he was born, June 3rd, 1838. His father was born in Tuftonboro, N.H. and was killed on board the steamer Westfield in New York harbor July 30th, 1871, buried at South Duxbury. His mother Betsey (Phelps) Dow, was born in Colbrook, Conn., and died in Duxbury September 18th, 1850, buried at South Duxbury. Comrade Dow was promoted from private to corporal February 25th, 1863, which office he held through his term of service. At the battle of Gettysburg he was wounded in the foot by a piece of spent shell, just as the regiment started on its charge July 2nd. This same piece of shell after striking Corporal Dow's foot bounded and hit his comrade E. A. Fisk in the knee. Since his discharge he has lived in New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Vermont. Present address. Plainfield, Vt.

Orson C. Turner was born in Duxbury and enlisted from that town. He was appointed corporal at the organization of the Company. He was taken sick in November and the 26th of that month he was sent to the general hospital where he remained till the 8th day of March, 1863, when he returned to the Company. We had almost given up the thought that we should have him with us again during our term of service, but we were mistaken in this, for from the time of his return onward he was tough and hearty. He stood that last hard march and the battle remarkably well. I shall always remember him as I saw him at Gettysburg, especially during that daring charge of our regiment on the second day of the battle.

M. FRANKLIN ATKINS, CO. B. 1862,

M. Franklin Atkins enlisted from Duxbury in which town he was born. He had seen previous service in the 2nd Vermont, Company D, from which he was discharged for disability, but having recovered his health in a measure, he was very anxious to try it again. Soon after reaching the front he was detailed as teamster, but his health failed him again and January 6th, 1863, he was sent to the general hospital where he was discharged for disability January 15th, and died only a few months later.

Near the beginning of the charge his cap flew off but there was no time to stop for that and he rushed onward with a yell and much of the time he kept a little in advance of the boys on either hand whom he seemed to think were altogether too slow. He picked up a cap marked 19, Me., later which he wore the rest of the time.

Alonzo J. Bruce enlisted from Duxbury, in which town he was born April 1, 1842. His great-grandfather, Moses Bruce, was one of the first settler in Newburyport, Mass., and was quarter-master in the old Continental Army under General Wolfe when he made his raid into Canada. His grandfather, also Moses Bruce, born in Newburyport, moved to Barnard where is father, Moses Bruce, was born who afterwards settled in Duxbury. His grandfather was six years old and could remember the battle of Bunker Hill and often told about seeing the red coats cross the Charles River.

Comrade Bruce was a good soldier but came through his term of service without special incident to mark it from others. He was sick and in regimental hospital a few weeks about December but was soon on duty again, and was with the company to the end.

He married Mary Fairman, of Greenfield, Mass., in 1865. She died February, 1900. Children, Mary Helen, born in Duxbury, January 1, 1866, married James R. Dunkerson, of Kentucky, has two children; Alice Martha, born in Deerfield, Mass., December 15, 1869, married James Hanlan, has three children; Howard Percy, born in Deerfield, Mass., December 1871, married Gertrude Robinson, has two children; Mrytle Maud, born May 2,

WATERBURY RECORD

This section of the newsletter usually includes reprints from the Waterbury Record that have been reported from the town of Duxbury. The Waterbury Record was not in print at the time of the Civil War so I thought I would take a look at some of the first issues they produced in 1895.

Although it was many years after the war, reflections and information about its participants received weekly reporting. The newspaper as it was arranged in 1895 was quite different from the later issues that we are more familiar with. The front page contained mostly advertisements with a single column of information on Waterbury. The state news might earn a single column on page two or three of the paper. In contrast, the Civil War participants and events would receive two to four columns every week.

The paper published this notice in for those that wanted more news:

VERMONTERS

While this paper fully covers all the news of this vicinity, we advise our readers to take the BUR-LINGTON FREE PRESS for the State and general news, in which field the FREE PRESS easily excels all other Vermont papers. We club this paper and the Weekly FREE PRESS (a twelve page paper) both one year for $2.10.

Duxbury only received an occasional mention in contrast to a after the turn of the century when they would have a weekly publication of the local happenings. At the time other communities that were located much farther away such as, Washington, West Brookfield, Williamstown, Gouldsville, East Orange, Warren, East Warren, Moretown, Middlesex, Montpelier, Waitsfield, Stafford, Northfield, Tunbridge, Corinth, East Thetford and Norwich University did make a regular contribution to the paper. Later on as newspapers were established, they probably contributed their information to papers that were closer to home and discontinued submitting information to the Waterbury Record.

The Waterbury Record had a section of the paper called - Around the Campfire and a majority of the reports mention Civil War participants along with then current military information.

Around the Campfire May 7, 1895

Capt. Guy Howard, assistant quartermaster of the United States army, has taken steps for the purchase of 36 bay horses for the use of troops at Fort Ethan Allen.

Died at the Bennington Soldiers' Home of apoplexy, Shepard Dickinson, late Co. K 15th Vermont regiment. He was admitted to the Home July 3, 1891 from Weathersfield. The burial took place at his former home.

Owing to the constantly increasing number of veterans who apply for admission to the Vermont Soldiers' Home in Bennington, it looks as tho' it will be necessary to put on a thirty-foot addition to the main building before the end of the year.

The exercises at the dedication of the new hall of C. J. Ormsbee post at Bandon, Wednesday evening were successfully carried out. Several prominent Grand Army men from out of town were present and took part. At the close of the exercises a banguet was served

The examinations for promotions in the St. Johnsbury Guards have been held and C.A. Celley secures the position of sergeant and these have been made corporals: L.J. Allen, John Beck, E. H. Bazin and L. S. Morris. After the drill, the newly appointed officers gave a banquet to the whole company at the restaurant of Allison & Davie. The boys thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

There is another section of the paper titled - War Reminiscences that would have two to three regular columns with reflections and stories of the war.

War Reminiscences April 23, 1895

The Widow of Six Soldiers

There is a woman living in the Sinnamahonig Valley, PA who was born an Orr, and by marriage she has in turn changed to

Barnes, Calahan, Rix, Enos, Robinson, Elder and now Bailey. Each of her six dead husbands had been a soldier in the late war, and she married the first one in 1863, when she was seventeen. It is hardly fair to say either, that these husbands were entirely six, for not one of them had all of himself when he succeeded to the title of husband to this admirer of the military. Three of the husbands had only one leg apiece: one had only seven fingers, besides being short a leg, another wooed and won the widow with one leg and one arm, and the sixth was "minus" an eye. This one died three years ago last May. Her present husband is not a veteran of the war, and had all his legs, arms, fingers and eyes. Mrs. Bailey is not yet forty-nine, and is the mother of twelve children, two each by her soldier husbands. - Chicago Tribune

When Gen. Grant was in Japan the emperor invited him to cross the imperial footbridge near the palace at Tokio across which none but those of royal blood had ever passed. Gen. Grant accepted the invitation and walked beside the Mikado until they reached the center of the bridge. Then he stopped, profoundly saluted the emperor, and said "Your majesty, I have come so far to show you that I am not insensible to the honor you would do me, but I cannot violate your traditions. Let us return the way we came." It was a graceful act, gracefully done.

At the battle of Hooker's Run, in 1864, Jacob Leidy, of Company F, first regiment, Pennsylvania volunteers, lost a Testament. The book was returned to him recently. It was picked up on the field by Peter Weaver, a union soldier, who after the war, took it home with him. Weaver died lately, and the book was found among his effects. Leidy's name, which was written on the fly leaf, led to its return.
